Under the LORD HIGH ADMIRAL, or the LORDS COMMISSIONERS of the ADMIRALTY, are several Departments for the better Government of the Royal Navy. The first of these is the

TREASURER OF THE NAVY.

His office is of great trust, dignity, and profit. His business is to order payment of all seamens wages, Navy and Victualling bills, &c. He draws the money from the Exchequer, by a warrant from the Commissioners of the Treasury. He is always of the Privy Council, and had formerly a salary of L.2000 per annum; but the profits of his office, especially in war-time, were very considerable. Upon the reform of various offices in the year 1782, this office came in for its share; the perquisites, or rather the advantage from great sums of the public money lying long in the Treasurer of the Navy's hands, were abolished, and his salary fixed at L.4000 per annum, and L.1500 per annum allowed his Deputy. He has a number of Clerks at his office in Broad-street, and several at the ports of Portsmouth, Plymouth, and Chatham, for the payment of seamen's wages.

N. B.—The Commissioners resident at Halifax, Antigua, and Jamaica, have each a salary of L.500 per annum, and L.500 per annum each for extra charges.

The Commissioners resident at Chatham, Portsmouth, and Plymouth, have each an elegant house within the dock-yard. The yard at Sheerness is under the inspection of the Commissioner at Chatham; and the dock-yards at Deptford and Woolwich are under the immediate direction of the Navy Board.

The principal officers and Commissioners of the Navy hold their offices by patent under the Great Seal; and under each department of the Navy Board there is an establishment of clerks, and other inferior officers, officers with salaries, for the dispatch of business: But all other officers, both in the King's yards, and all others belonging to any of his Majesty's ships, hold their places only by warrant from the Lord High Admiral, or the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty.

VICTUALLING OFFICE.

The next department is the Victualling Office. The business of this office is to superintend the victualling of the royal navy. This formerly was done by contract; but this method was subject to enormous abuses; for the contractors were attentive to nothing but profit, and the provisions were so bad, that many seamens lives were lost by using them. Seven Commissioners were appointed to manage this business; they have their respective agents at the several ports of his Majesty, both at home and abroad. They contract for the several articles of food used in the navy, which they are obliged to inspect very narrowly; they oversee the bakehouses and breweries; accept of bills drawn in foreign ports by Pursers, for the supply of his Majesty's ships, and audit and pass Pursers accounts.

The Victualling Office is situated on Towerhill; and here are a number of officers, clerks, &c. with fixed salaries, for the dispatch of business.

The Commissioners, who have each a separate department in the business of this office, have a salary of L.400 per annum each.

The departments of this office are managed as follow:—

1. Comptroller of the Treasurer's Accounts.
2. Ditto of the Cooperage.
3. Ditto of the Bakehouse.
4. Ditto of the Brewhouse.
5. Ditto of Accounts.
6. Ditto of the Cuttinghouse.
7. Hoy-taker.

ORDNANCE OFFICE.

This office is in the Tower of London, and hath both a civil and a military branch. It supplies both the Army and Navy with all sorts of military stores. When to the latter, they are delivered on board their respective ships to the gunner, who has under him an armourer and a gunsmith. Storekeepers are established at all the principal sea-ports where any of his Majesty's ships are stationed, both at home and abroad, who receive the stores from the Board of Ordnance, where there are clerks and other officers with salaries, for the expediting the business of the Army and Navy; but as this office more properly belongs to the Army, an account of its establishment and principal officers will be found under the article Military Department.

EXAMINATIONS.

This department is under the direction of several officers, all acting by the authority of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty. In order that none but persons properly qualified may serve on board the Royal Navy as officers, they must all pass a strict examination as to their knowledge and skill in their respective stations, and obtain certificates thereof from the different examiners, before their commissions or warrants are delivered to them. Thus, all Lieutenants of the Royal Navy are examined by the Commissioners of the Navy-office.

All Masters are examined at the Trinity House, Water Lane, Tower Street, by the Elder Brethren of the Trinity House, who at present are—

This Society was first founded in the year 1515 by Sir Thomas Spert, Knt. commander of the great ship Henry Grace de Dieu, and Comptroller of the Navy to King Henry VIII. for the regulation of seamen, and the convenience of ships and mariners; and by the above King were incorporated, their privileges confirmed, and considerably extended. Queen Elizabeth and King Charles II. finding how very useful they were, enlarged their rights and powers: These were amply confirmed by letters patent of King James II. in 1685, by the name of The Masters, Wardens and Assistants of the Guild and Fraternity of the most Glorious and undivided Trinity, and of St Clement in the parish of Deptford Strand, in the county of Kent. This Corporation is governed by a Master, 4 Wardens, 8 Assistants, and 18 Elder Brethren; and they have very great powers, and among others, the examining all Masters of the Royal Navy, the placing of buoys, sea-marks, and light-houses, upon the several coasts of the kingdom, and the examination and licensing of all Pilots, &c. &c.

The Gunners of the Navy are examined on the art of gunnery by the Master Gunner of England for the time being, or his deputies; or by some Mathematical-master, and three able Gunners of the Navy, appointed by the Commissioners of the Navy, residing at the port where such Gunners are first appointed.

Surgeons Mates are examined by the Court of Examiners of the Corporation of Surgeons of London; and Surgeons are examined as to their skill in surgery by the above Court of Examiners; and respecting their skill in physic, by the Physician of Greenwich Hospital for the time being.

ROYAL HOSPITAL AT GREENWICH.

This superb building stands on the spot where formerly stood the Royal Palace of several of our Monarchs. King Charles II. intended to build a new palace here on a very grand scale, and accordingly erected one wing of this grand edifice, but died before any other part of the design was finished. In this state it remained till King William III. formed a plan to make this palace useful to the kingdom. He therefore, by letters patent in 1694, erected this palace into an hospital, pital, for the reception of such seamen, as by age, wounds, or other accidents, are rendered incapable of farther service, and for the widows of such as happen to be slain in the sea-service. Parliament lent its aid to complete this noble building, agreeably to the first design, and Commissioners were appointed to see it executed. Benefactions were received for this glorious institution, amounting to L.58,209; and Parliament, in the year 1716, bestowed on it the estate of the attainted Earl of Derwentwater, then amounting to L.6000 a-year. A tax was laid upon all seamen in the Royal Navy, and in the merchants service, for the maintenance of this Hospital. In this Hospital, there are now 2300 men, 140 women as nurses, and 150 boys*, and five more women as nurses to the sick. The pensioners are clothed in blue, and are allowed clothes, linen, stockings, shoes, and 1s. a week for tobacco. Some of these are boatswains mates, appointed to assist the boatswains; these are distinguished by a narrow gold edging on their hats, and have 1s. 6d. per week for pocket-money. There is a boatswain for each ward in the Hospital, whose business it is to take care of the ward, see the men do their duty, and report any misdemeanours to the Lieutenant-governor, and likewise to command the watch upon their guard; these have a broad gold lace round their pockets, cuffs and hats, and have half a crown a-week pocket-money.

The boys also wear blue. They are taken in at 11 years of age, and go out at 16, either to the sea-service, or any other trade they may chuse.

The Governors of this Charity appointed by act of Parliament, are the Great Officers of State, and persons in high posts under the King; the Lord Mayor, and the three senior Aldermen of the city of London; the Master and five Elder Brethren of the Trinity House; the Governor and Deputy-governor of Greenwich Hospital. To these, his Majesty in Council is empowered to add such Noblemen and Gentlemen as he sees fit.

The Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty name 24 gentlemen as Commissioners for the better government of the Hospital. The Officers of the House form a Council, which meets once a-week, for the punishing of all breaches of rules; appeals may be made to the Commissioners, who meet once a fortnight. The Governors meet every six months, or oftener, if occasion require it.

The

* The boys admitted into this Hospital, are the sons of sailors, particularly of such as were slain in battle. They were added into this charity by Lord Aylmer, when Governor; and the fund for their maintenance and education, arises from the money paid by each stranger who comes to see the Hospital, its paintings, &c.

The Officers receive 1s. 2d. per day for their table ; and officers and servants of the House have apartments.

Besides the Master, Lieutenant-Governor, Captains, and Lieutenants, there are a great number of other officers, clerks and servants, who have all competent salaries and apartments ; and there is also a schoolmaster to teach the boys mathematics, &c.

The Paymaster of the Marines is Gabriel Stewart, esq. whose office is in Great Newport-street. The Agent to the Marines is Griffith Williams, esq. whose office is in Bartlett's Buildings.

The Marine Corps are divided into three divisions, and fixed at Chatham, Portsmouth, and Plymouth. Here they are under the command of their own field-officers, who discipline them, and regulate their different duties.

His late Majesty, in 1760, formed a new establishment of Marine Officers, entitled, the General, Lieutenant-General, and three Colonels of Marines, (one for each division) to be taken from officers in the Royal Navy. SECRETARIES AT WAR,

From 1660 to the present Time.

This officer may not improperly be stiled the Minister of the War Department. He is in fact the Military Secretary to the King, and conveys his Majesty's orders to all Generals and Military Governors at home and abroad, relative to the troops and garrisons under their respective commands; and with him they correspond, and to him they make their returns and reports, (as well as to the Commander in Chief) and he lays the business before his Majesty, for his inspection and directions. All orders for marching, quartering, encamping, and recruiting the army, are signed by him, by his Majesty's command; and all military commissions are made out at the War-Office, (Horse-Guards, Whitehall) and by him, or the Commander in Chief, carried to his Majesty to be signed. The trust reposed in this officer is very great, as are the profits of his office, especially in time of war. He is always a member of the Privy-Council.

PAYMASTERS-GENERAL OF THE LAND FORCES.

This office was one of the most lucrative in his Majesty's gift, not so much from the salary annexed to it, and the perquisites of office, but from the immense sums of money which formerly lay in their hands for a long space of time together, as the whole of the money voted by Parliament for the land forces passed through their hands. In the year 1782, this office underwent a reform, and the Paymaster-General was allowed a fixed salary of L.4000, and his Deputy a salary of L.1500 a-year, in lieu of all perquisites.

The Paymaster-General is constituted by letters-patent, under the Great Seal. He is always of the Privy Council, and in his office are a great number of clerks for the dispatch of business.

EAST-INDIA COMPANY.

On the 18th May 1784, an act of Parliament empowering his Majesty to appoint six Privy Counsellors to be Commissioners for the affairs of India; one of his Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, and the Chancellor of the Exchequer for the time being, always to be two of them; three of whom shall make a board, and the said Secretary of State to be President, and in his absence, the Chancellor of the Exchequer; and in absence of both, the senior Commissioner shall be President. Their powers are very great, they having the superintendence and controul over all the British territorial possessions in the East Indies, and over the affairs of the United Company of Merchants trading to the East Indies.

The President has the casting vote. His Majesty may revoke the commission at pleasure, and appoint new commissioners. Since this act passed, it was found necessary, from the great increase of business which came before the Board, to increase the number of the Commissioners: the President has a salary of L.2000 per annum, and three of the commissioners have each of them a salary of L.1500 per annum.

The Board is vested with great powers; and the Directors of the East India Company must, if required, lay all their letters and papers before them, and receive their orders; and if they are not contented therewith, they can appeal to his Majesty in Council.

JUSTI.

JUSTICIARS OF ENGLAND.

In ancient times the Kings of England used to hear and determine causes; but it is declared by law, that if the King cannot determine every controversy, he, to ease himself, may divide the labour among persons, men of wisdom, and fearing God, and out of such to appoint Judges. The Saxon Kings of England appointed a Judge after this manner, who was, in fact, the King's deputy. After the Norman Conquest, the person invested with that power had the style of Capitalis Justicia, or Justiciarius Angliæ. These Judges continued until the erection of the Courts of King's Bench, and the Common Pleas.

The last person that had the office of Justiciarius Angliæ, was Philip Basset; and he, for the better support of his high office, received an annual stipend of a thousand merks out of the King's Exchequer, at Easter and Michaelmas, by equal portions, as Hugh Bigod his predecessor did.

 Of the COURT of KING's BENCH.

This Court obtained its present name from the King sometimes sitting here on a high bench, and the judges, to whom the judicature belongs in his absence, on a low bench at his feet. This Court, in ancient times, was called Curia Domini Regis: and in the reign of King Edward I. a statute passed, by which it was enacted, that this Court should attend the King, and follow him, so that he might have at all times near him men learned in the laws, to do justice to such as might require it. It was afterwards fixed to be held at Westminster; and the judges took their oaths in the Court of Exchequer before the Lord High Treasurer. The judges of this Court used to ride to Westminster Hall on mules; but Sir John Whiddon, in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, first introduced horses; but of late years they go in coaches. In the reign of King Edward II. Hervey de Stanton, at that time Chancellor of the Exchequer, was appointed Chief Justice of this Court, with a special command not to resign the office of Chancellor, but to execute the same by some proper person, whenever he should be obliged to hear causes in this court. The Chief Justice of this court is always appointed Chancellor of the Exchequer, when that office becomes vacant by death, or unexpected resignation.

In this court are tried all pleas between the Crown and the subject, of treasons, felonies, misprision of treason, and other pleas which properly belong to the King; and also in whatsoever relates to the loss of life or member of any subject, in which the King is concerned, as he is a sufferer by the loss of the life or limbs of his subjects. This court hath power to examine and correct all errors in facto, and in in law, committed by the judges and justices in their judgments and proceedings in courts of record; and this not only in pleas of the crown, but also in all pleas, real, personal, and mixed, the Court of Exchequer excepted. It hath also power to correct other errors and misdemeanors extrajudicial, tending to the breach of the peace, or oppression of the subject; and to grant prohibitions to courts ecclesiastical and temporal, to keep them within their own jurisdiction; and may admit any person to bail for any offence allowed bailable by law. If a freeman of any city, borough, or town-corporate, be unjustly disfranchised, the party aggrieved may have relief here. It hath also power to hold plea by bill, detinue, covenant, promise, or other personal actions, against any one in the Marshal's custody, or any officer or person belonging to the court.

The jurisdiction of this court extends all over England, and is not so subject to controul as others, because the law presumes the King to be here in person. So supreme also is the jurisdiction of this court, if any record be removed hither, it cannot be remanded back but by act of Parliament.

The Judges or Justices of this court, are the Premier Justices of Oyer and Terminer and Goal-delivery in the kingdom: so that whenever this court sits in any county, the commission directed to the justices in Eyre of Oyer and Terminer, and Goal-delivery, are ipso facto void, without a formal revocation of commission. They are also the chief coroners of the land, and therefore they receive appeals by bill, much rather than the sheriff and coroners.

OF THE COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

This Court, in ancient times, was kept in the King's own palace, distinct from that of the King's Bench. But on the confirmation of Magna Charta by King John, in 1215, it was fixed at Westminster, where it still continues. In it are debated all controversies, in matters civil, between subject and subject, according to law. Here real actions are pleadable, and fines and recoveries suffered, and in no other court but this; it may also grant prohibitions, as the court of King's Bench doth. The Magna Charta proves its authority in these words, viz. Communia placita non sequantur curiam nostram, sed teneantur in aliquo certo loco; the Exchequer being the place where those causes were heard, and not any other court, until the confirmation of Magna Charta by King John. And by a statute, 28th of Edward I. it is declared, That no plea shall be thenceforth held in the Exchequer, contrary to the form of the great charter.

Soon after the fixing of this court at Westminster, such a multitude of causes were brought before it, that the King, for the greater dispatch of business, found it necessary, instead of three, to constitute six judges, whom he appointed to sit in two places; but at present the number is only four. They sit together in Westminster Hall, to hear and decide causes; but no counsellor can plead for them under the degree of a serjeant.

OF THE COURT OF EXCHEQUER.

The Court of Exchequer is one of the four great Courts of the Kingdom, and is held in a room contiguous to the north-west corner of Westminster Hall, and is so named from a chequered cloth which anciently covered the table, where the Judges and Chief Officers sat. This Court was first erected by King William the Conqueror, for the trial of all causes relating to the revenues of the Crown; and in the same Court there are now also matters of equity between subject and subject. In this last, the Lord High Treasurer, or the Chancellor of the Exchequer, presides, assisted by the Lord Chief Baron, and the Barons of the Exchequer: But the judicial proceedings, according to law, are only before the Barons or Judges of the Exchequer; and here before them are tried all causes relating to the King's revenue; such as are concerning accounts, disbursements, customs, and fines imposed. The Judges of this Court are called Barons, viz. one Lord Chief Baron, and three other Barons. They are styled Barons, as in ancient times Barons sat here by the King's appointment to try causes; but in latter times only men skilled in the law have been appointed Judges in this Court; and they still retain the title of Baron.

To this Court appertains another person called a Baron, viz. the Cursitor Baron, who sits in Court with the other Barons; but is no judge, his office being only to administer the oath to the sheriffs, undersheriffs, bailiffs, searchers, surveyors, and other officers of the Custom-house.

When at any time the Barons are of different opinions concerning the decision of any cause, they call to their assistance the Chancellor of the Exchequer, who decides in favour of one of the parties by his casting vote.

To this office belong a King's Remembrancer, Lord Treasurer's Remembrancer, Clerk of the Pipe, Comptroller of the Pipe, Auditors of the Imprest, Remembrancers of the First Fruits, &c. &c. All of whom in their proper places.

*The Court or Office of the Receipt of his Majesty's Exchequer.AUDITOR of the RECEIPT of the EXCHEQUER.

This is an office of great trust and profit. He files the bills of the tellers, by which they charge themselves with all the moneys received; and, by warrant from the Lord Treasurer, or the Commissioners of the Treasury, he draws all orders, to be signed by him or them, for issuing forth all monies, by virtue of Privy Seals, which are recorded in the clerk of the Pells office, and entered and lodged in the Auditor's office. He also, by warrant of the Lord Treasurer, or the Commissioners of the Treasury, makes debentures to such as have fees, annuities, or pensions, by letters-patent from the King, out of the Exchequer, and directs them for payment to the tellers. He daily receives the state of the account of each teller, and weekly certifies the whole to the Lords of the Treasury.

At Michaelmas and Lady-day he makes a declaration. This is an abstract of all accounts and payments made in the preceding half year; one for the Lords of the Treasury, and the other for the Chancellor of the Exchequer. He keeps the registers appointed for payments in course, upon several branches of the King's revenue. He holds his office for life; and for the discharge of these offices he has a chief clerk, a clerk of the Debentures, a clerk of the Register and Issues, a clerk of the Cash-book, and a clerk for making out Exchequer bills; and in the office for annuities under the Auditor are two chief clerks, and nine clerks under them.

The FOUR TELLERS of the EXCHEQUER,

Each of whom has his deputy, his first clerk, and four other clerks. When they enter upon office, they must each of them give security to the amount of L.20,000 for the faithful discharge of their trust. Their office is to receive all money due to the King, and thereupon to throw down a bill through the Pipe into the Tally-court *, where it is received

* The Tally-court in the Exchequer, takes its name from the French word taller, to cut: a tally being a piece of wood wrote upon both sides, containing an acquittance for money received; which being cloven asunder by the deputy-chamberlains, one part, called the stock, is delivered to the person who pays or lends money to the government; and the other part, called the counter-stock, or counter-foil, remains in the office, to be kept till called for, and joined with the stock.— This method of striking tallies is very ancient; and has been found, by long experience, to be the best way of preventing frauds that ever was invented; for it is morally impossible so to counterfeit a tally, but upon rejoining it with the counter-foil, the intended fraud will be obvious to every eye, either in the notches or the cleaving, in the length or in the breadth, or in the natural growth, or in the shape of the counterfoil.

ceived by the Auditor's clerk, who there attends to write the words of the bill upon a tally, and then delivers the same to be entered by the Clerk of the Pells, or his under clerk, who attends to enter it in his book. Then the tally is cloven by the two deputy Chamberlains; and while the senior deputy reads one part, the junior examines the other part with the two clerks.

Under them are four deputy Chamberlains, in whose office are preserved all the counter-foils of the above tallies, so exactly arranged that they can be easily found, in order to be joined with their respective tallies; which being done and proved true, they deliver it attested for a lawful tally to the Clerk of the Pipe, to be allowed in the great roll.

OF THE MASTER OF THE ROLLS.

The Master of the Rolls is the first of the Twelve Masters in Chancery, and he is called the Master of the Rolls, from having the custody of all charters, patents, commissions, deeds, and recognizances, which being made into rolls of parchment, gave occasion for that name. This repository of public papers is called the Rolls, being situated in Chancery-lane, and was a chapel founded for the converted Jews, which, after their being expelled the kingdom, was annexed for ever to the office of the Master of the Rolls. Here are kept all the records since the beginning of the reign of King Richard III. all prior to that period being kept in the Tower of London. The Master of the Rolls is an officer of great trust; he is always of the Privy Council; and his office is of great profit, though much short of what it has been. He is so far an assistant to the Lord High Chancellor, as to hear causes in his absence, but does not go so far as to make a decree. By virtue of his office, he keeps a court at the Rolls, with two assistant Masters in Chancery, where he hears and determines causes that come there before him; but his decrees are appealable to the Court of Chancery. His place is in the King's gift; and he has the gift of the six clerks' offices, of the examiners' offices, three clerks of the petty bag, and the six clerks of the Rolls Chapel. He has under him a secretary, two registers, and an usher.

In Parliament-time, when he sits in the House of Lords, his place is next to the Lord Chief Justice of England, upon the second wool-sack.

CHIEF JUSTICES IN EYRE.

When the forest-laws were in force, the office of Chief Justice in Eyre was an office of great trust and dignity. There are two of them, one whose power extended south of the river Trent; the other to the north of that river. By ancient custom they should go their circuits every third year, and punish all abuses committed in his Majesty's forests; forests; but the office is now a mere sinecure, the verdurers of the different royal forests transacting all the business.

THE COURT OF THE DUCHY OF LANCASTER.

There is another Court at Westminster, called The Duchy Court of Lancaster, where all causes any way relating to the revenue of the Duchy of Lancaster are tried. Another branch of the same Court is established at Preston in Lancashire, called The Court of the County Palatine of Lancaster, for the same purposes in that county as the other is in Westminster.

These Courts were erected by King Henry IV. after his having deposed King Richard II. when possessing the Duchy of Lancaster in right of his mother, he imagined his claim to be better than that to the throne, and therefore separated it from the Crown, and erected these Courts for its use.

The Chief Judge of these Courts is the Chancellor, under whom are a set of inferior officers in each court for the conducting of business.

Of

Of the GENERAL POST-OFFICE, and POSTMASTERS-GENERAL.

It is not easy to determine when the Post was first established in England. Anciently the management of the foreign mails was under the direction of a stranger; who, by the permission of the Government, was chosen by the foreigners, merchants, and residents in the city of London; who even pretended to have a right by prescription of chusing their own Postmaster. However, in the year 1568, a difference arising between the Spaniards and Flemings in London, each chose their separate Postmaster; and this contest occasioned a representation from the citizens to the Privy Council, to beseech her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth, to fill that important post with one of her English subjects. From this time to the year 1660, the Posts in this kingdom underwent various regulations, until King Charles II. that year, had a General Post-Office erected, to be kept within the city of London, under the direction of a Postmaster-General, appointed by the King. By this act, the Postmaster-General was empowered to appoint Post-houses in the several parts of the country, hitherto unprovided, both in post and by-roads: The postage of letters to and from all places therein mentioned; was not only ascertained, but likewise the rates of post-horses, to be paid by all such as should ride post.

The revenue of the Post in England was, in former reigns, farmed; and continued to increase with amazing rapidity, when it was taken into the hands of Government; and by an act of Parliament, in the year 1710, it was established, not only for the kingdom of Great Britain, but likewise for that of Ireland, and dominions beyond seas.

The office of Postmaster-General is at present under the direction of two Commissioners, who have a salary of L. 5000 per annum. They are are excluded from sitting in the House of Commons. Under their orders are all the packet-boats that are established at Falmouth, in Cornwall, and all the Postmasters in the different towns in the kingdom. They are assisted by a Secretary and four clerks, a Receiver-General, an Accountant-General, a Comptroller-General, &c. under whom are a very great number of inferior officers necessarily employed.

A List of the POSTMASTERS-GENERAL, from the Union of the two kingdoms to the present time.

REGENCY.

The King of Great Britain is the Sovereign and Supreme Head of the united kingdoms of England and Scotland; as he is also of Ireland, and of all other the dominions belonging to the British Crown. He has a claim to the sovereignty of the seas enviroing Great Britain and Ireland, and the isles adjacent, as far as the shores of neighbouring nations. Therefore it was formerly the custom for all foreigners to ask leave to fish and to pass in these seas, and to lower their top-sails to all the British ships of war.

Our King gives place to no Monarch, except the Emperor of Germany, and that upon account of antiquity; for the Crown of Great Britain is free and independent.

From the Restoration to the time of King James's abdication of the Crown, there was no Regency; but after King William III. came over, and was proclaimed and crowned, his affairs calling him abroad, his Majesty, May 5. 1695, appointed seven of the wisest and ablest of the Nobility, to be Guardians, Justices, and Lieutenants in England during his absence.

By a clause in an act passed in the 12th and 13th of King William III. "For the further limitation of the Crown, and better securing the rights and liberties of the subject," it was enacted, "That no person who shall come to the possession of the Crown, shall go out of the dominions of England, Scotland, or Ireland, without consent of Parliament." But his late Majesty King George I. on his accession to the Throne, repealed the said clause, in these words following: "And the restrictions, by the said clause meant or intended, are and shall be repealed, and shall for ever be, and be deemed and taken to be, void and of none effect."

During the reign of King William III. they were also written and called Guardians, Justices of England, and his Majesty's Lieutenants in the same. On Queen Anne's decease, they were styled Justices of Great Britain. When King George I. visited his dominions abroad, the Prince of Wales was constituted Guardian of Great Britain, and Lieutenant in the same; and whenever afterwards his Majesty's affairs required him to cross the seas, he appointed some of his prime Ministers of State, Noblemen, and others, his Guardians and Justices of the kingdom of Great Britain, and his Lieutenants in the same. And King George II. whenever he went to visit his German dominions during the lifetime of his Royal Consort Queen Caroline, appointed her Majesty Queen, Regent; and, after her death, the great Officers of State, and others whom his Majesty could confide in, were appointed Regents.

REGENTS, GUARDIANS, JUSTICES, and LIEUTENANTS in ENGLAND and GREAT BRITAIN, in the absence of the King.
